
Mar 7, 2504 BE The error message suggests that you have access denied because Innogmp.exe and Innogmp_win.exe file already have limited permission rights. Please check the permission rights of the mentioned files. You can also try to remove.\Innogmp_win.exe file and retry to run it. This is just a workaround and the problem may be solved by changing the permission rights of Innogmp.exe and Innogmp_win.exe. Ask HN: Would you join a minimalist startup? - safeinfo I know it sounds like my fringe. But there are a lot of companies where the founders of the company (the founder's) have full time jobs and do not have the time to focus on their company. They've setup an easy to use web service that is basically just one link away. It's like a Facebook for anything. Users can share anything with a link. The platform is pretty bare bones. There is no analytics, no team management, no app store, no app, etc. It is basically an app for people who want to share things and get updates. It is pretty bare bones. This company does not have a team of 10, but the founder of the company has a lot of free time and is very motivated. Would you be interested in joining the team as a co-founder? ===== tixocloud If you have more experience in the space, then maybe a better approach would be to offer advice on how to monetize it better. If not, you can probably get access to some services like Cinch or Sharethrough to get some analytics in place. If you have time to build up an audience, then you can use ad network as well - Adsense and Amazon AMP. I can't imagine these companies are giving that platform away for free. Either way, I would think that they would give you a look based on your statement. ----- jrs235 As a user of your service? Sure, if the product is solid, I would join. As an employee? Why not?
